Subject: Clean-up of the Superfund site on the lower Willamette River

Because the lower Willamette River in Portland, OR, is a Superfund Site, it must be cleaned up for the health of wildlife, fish, and humans. The parties who created the pollution must own up to their responsibility to pay for the cleanup.

I favor a robust effort to remove contaminants from the river and dispose of them in a safe repository.

I believe a more vigorous effort is needed than the proposed plan to allow natural sediment deposition to cover the pollutants, with monitoring of the riverbed. This proposal leaves too much risk in the river, and entails continuing costs for years to come.

Choose a more vigorous approach.
